Communists suspected of operating from SOS

BY DAMA ZHENG-TON
COMRADE

Students organizations in the Student Organization Suite have recently been accused of holding meetings in recruiting members for an underground Communist group.

When the normal flow of Porkie traffic has died down, select members of each of the organizations suspiciously sit around the big tables in the SOS, deep in discussion.

University officials suspect that they may be screening potential comrades, as well as planning strategies of dispersing propaganda.

As of last week, the SOS had been blocked off to investigate the issue in further detail.

“We are not taking any chances,” said Official Person.

Officials suspect that each of the organizations has contributed a great deal to this propaganda, led by Student Senate. With easy access to printing material, PolyPro and the First love have placed hidden text in the First love to capture readers’ attentions.

With more time than the First, the Kwikideen yearbook goes into a more detailed description of the group’s plans. Proposals to communist speakers have been found in the Student Activity Board office. Residence Hall Council has been spotted with tanks of hypnotic gas.

Although FULL does not operate in the SOS, they do have their secret access door leading into the suite. Some students claim they have heard a constant buzz over the radio waves, but could not quite distinguish what it was.

Though it is clearly obvious that these students have more than just academics on the mind, the invert students cannot be found guilty quite yet.

“We have not caught them in the act,” said disappointed police officials.

Leaders of these student organizations would not comment on the allegations. The only answer they could offer was, “The Institution will prevail.”

An anonymous tip to the police have led investigators to suspect that agents may help across the way in the Multi-Cultural Suite.

Officials assured students and staff that detailed invetigation will continue and there is no need for panic. Comrades are still at large.

Nevins set to go stadium-style

The new theater will cause a tuition hike, however

BY GRATUITIOUS F-BEEK
MASHA OF THE VOCAB

AU will get a taste of the big-time when Nevins Theatre is upgraded to a full-scale stadium-style movie theater.

“We just can’t compete with the big boys like Regal and TheaterTown anymore,” said a high ranking student official in the student affairs office.

The upgrades won’t come easy, though. The new theater, which will be as big as the rest of the campus center, will cause each student to tuke.

“We won’t be able to do it,” said the school official. “It means you’ve got all the good movies right when they’re released.”

Student reaction is mixed.

“I’m going to have to start selling drugs to be able to pay that tuition,” said one sophomore.

“Good thing there’s a good market here.”

Other students were more upbeat. “Dude, all I do is watch movies. Like that book I was supposed to read for Writing III! Yeah, I got the movie!” said an enthusiastic student.

The woman also mentioned that if his GPA were in dollars, he’d be filling for Chapter 11.

“I think it’s phallic,” said a female English major.

When asked what was phallic about it, the woman could only shake her head.

“Oh sure, like you don’t see it!” she said.

No students other than female English majors have determined that these student hapes are phallic.

The new theater will offer all uninterrupted views of the screen, surround sound and removable arm rests to create two-person "love seats.”

“Just so you can cope up,” said the theater designer with a grin and a possibly underage girl on his arm. He kind of smelled, too. Despite all the money going into the theater from different places, the theater will keep its “Nevins” title.

“Hey, we don’t want to put off this Nevins guy,” said a woman close to the project. “He might give us more money some day.”

The new theater should be complete for next semester. There will be a groundbreaking ceremony yesterday. All are invited to attend.

This is an example of inverted pyramid style. All this can be cut if needed.

George Washington was the first president.

Communist officials have been signing up students by the dozen in the SOS. Here, a student is welcomed to the group after taking an oath.

April 1, 2000

The Student Newspaper of Alfred University

Powers film to feature many of AU’s finest

Sequence to pop fave will be Hot Dog Day centerpiece

BY JAZZ MAN LOCK
STAFF PERSON

AU’s shagadelic communication professor loses his mojo during Hot Dog Day festivities in the final part of a three show series.

Auston Powers comes to the rescue, retrieving his mojo from Dr. Evil’s new ally, a certain midwestern playboy professor, who stole the mojo for one of her most popular classes.

We’re not talking about Death and Prying here.

Due to Heather Graham’s disappearance in Harder Hall, Betty White co-stars with Powers’ as his femme fatale.

While Powers’ appearance as Power’s loyal sidekick is a “bold move, an artistic gesture prompted by post-modern literature and lack of funding,” according to Jimmie Bla-Blu, founder of the popular band Jimmie’s Radio Shack. Reportedly, star Michael Myers spent all of the revenue generated by the previous two movies on his famed purple frisbee collection.

The播种 hobby will return in this episode and have, in fact, been spotted all over the AU campus, making appearances at Theta Theta Chi, some fraternities and the Honors House.

The theme of the movie is to have students, who all have been spotted at the Student Activities Suite, be神色 in the film.

All AU students are invited to attend the events, for the small fee of one purple frisbee.

That’s all.

No arms left, it is.

REALLY! There’s no more! What?!!

Distributed kick kegs

BY MRS. BEER
STAFF DRUNKARD

AU Beer Corporation is cutting kegs from their budget, according to Buzz Kill, President of Duff Beer.

Kill announced that customers will no longer be able to purchase Duff Beer by the keg after tomorrow.

“Kegs are shrinking our profit margins,” said Kill. “We just can’t afford to make the metal kegs anymore.”

Since 1994, metal kegs have been made out of micro-alloy metal, which is expensive to make. Due to popular demand by college students, however, many distributors continued to keg their beer.

“We just don’t want to lose the business anymore. To hell with the college students. Let them buy cases like everyone else in the world,” said M.T. Glass.

Many college students are outraged by the announcement. “F*rt off, man. No kegs is a major detrron,” said MoMing, President of the Kappa Kipilan Gamma fraternity of State University.

“Yeah, I’m buggin’. I promised a ton of freshmen a stellar kegger party this Friday, and now I will have to cancel,” added Philip MyCup, a senior at Saxum University.

Other beer distributors may follow Duff’s action. “I definitely believe we will also halt keg production,” said Jim Switch, president of Thrifty Beer Corporation.

“We need to follow the competitors because Duff promised a huge cut of their profits if we did,” Switch said.

Johnny Knows, President of Surfside, is anticipating student protests. “I have already cancelled!” said BEER! BACK PACK
Guys we NEED a headline!!

You know, since it’s the year 2000, we think it’s time for the University to look at an option that has finally reached its time.

Heck, it might even alleviate the housing crunch we seem to have developed.

It’s time for co-ed rooms.

Of course, there are some issues to be addressed here. Like the whole sex thing. Well, to be honest, it’s not like it isn’t going on anyway. Seriously, whoever thought that separate living areas for men and women would cut down on this sort of thing wasn’t thinking. Anyway, have you been to the residence halls lately? Men and women are already living on the “wrong” floor.

Yes, though, the biggest problem that creates is that the roommate is going to get upset sooner or later. We say this needs to stop.

By allowing co-ed rooms, everyone is happy. Plus, by not allowing these people to move more easily, if the relationship is getting rocky, there’s more incentive to work things out.

If, in fact, everyone is going to have a relationship, a lot of people just like the company of the opposite sex. The Managing Editor of this paper regularly goes out with groups of women and the Copy Manager has met up with a couple of men. Yes, there’s no reason these people shouldn’t be allowed to live together.

Thus, the co-ed arrangements should definitely go primarily in the suites and apartments. Private rooms however, there’s no question that one is using the improper bathroom in the morning.

Let’s pursue this option and help ease the housing problems we have:

Editor’s Note — The Editor doesn’t care at all that the Managing Editor goes out with groups of women, because the Editor is so cute. So is the Coffee Manager.

Why are you reading this? Get a life already!

At the end of the day, all we have is what we’ve got. We can’t change it, so we might as well accept it. If problems did exist, we should try to solve them.

There are no descendents in this headline.

While we appreciate the University’s efforts to take care of the campus, they fall short in one category: smell.

While we appreciate the University’s efforts to take care of the campus, they fall short in one category: smell.

There’s a weird odor coming out of the science labs. I don’t know what it is, but it’s bad. Same with the gym, the library, and the lecture halls. It’s just...ick. Yes, there’s a lot that needs to be done. But we don’t have the time to do it.

We say this needs to stop.

Why are you reading this? Get a life already!

Reference:

The Lia

Why are you reading this? Get a life already!

At the end of the day, all we have is what we’ve got. We can’t change it, so we might as well accept it. If problems did exist, we should try to solve them.

There are no descendents in this headline.

While we appreciate the University’s efforts to take care of the campus, they fall short in one category: smell.

While we appreciate the University’s efforts to take care of the campus, they fall short in one category: smell.

There’s a weird odor coming out of the science labs. I don’t know what it is, but it’s bad. Same with the gym, the library, and the lecture halls. It’s just...ick. Yes, there’s a lot that needs to be done. But we don’t have the time to do it.

We say this needs to stop.

Why are you reading this? Get a life already!

At the end of the day, all we have is what we’ve got. We can’t change it, so we might as well accept it. If problems did exist, we should try to solve them.

There are no descendents in this headline.

While we appreciate the University’s efforts to take care of the campus, they fall short in one category: smell.

While we appreciate the University’s efforts to take care of the campus, they fall short in one category: smell.

There’s a weird odor coming out of the science labs. I don’t know what it is, but it’s bad. Same with the gym, the library, and the lecture halls. It’s just...ick. Yes, there’s a lot that needs to be done. But we don’t have the time to do it.

We say this needs to stop.

Why are you reading this? Get a life already!

At the end of the day, all we have is what we’ve got. We can’t change it, so we might as well accept it. If problems did exist, we should try to solve them.

There are no descendents in this headline.

While we appreciate the University’s efforts to take care of the campus, they fall short in one category: smell.

While we appreciate the University’s efforts to take care of the campus, they fall short in one category: smell.

There’s a weird odor coming out of the science labs. I don’t know what it is, but it’s bad. Same with the gym, the library, and the lecture halls. It’s just...ick. Yes, there’s a lot that needs to be done. But we don’t have the time to do it.

We say this needs to stop.

Why are you reading this? Get a life already!

At the end of the day, all we have is what we’ve got. We can’t change it, so we might as well accept it. If problems did exist, we should try to solve them.

There are no descendents in this headline.

While we appreciate the University’s efforts to take care of the campus, they fall short in one category: smell.

While we appreciate the University’s efforts to take care of the campus, they fall short in one category: smell.

There’s a weird odor coming out of the science labs. I don’t know what it is, but it’s bad. Same with the gym, the library, and the lecture halls. It’s just...ick. Yes, there’s a lot that needs to be done. But we don’t have the time to do it.

We say this needs to stop.

Why are you reading this? Get a life already!

At the end of the day, all we have is what we’ve got. We can’t change it, so we might as well accept it. If problems did exist, we should try to solve them.

There are no descendents in this headline.

While we appreciate the University’s efforts to take care of the campus, they fall short in one category: smell.

While we appreciate the University’s efforts to take care of the campus, they fall short in one category: smell.

There’s a weird odor coming out of the science labs. I don’t know what it is, but it’s bad. Same with the gym, the library, and the lecture halls. It’s just...ick. Yes, there’s a lot that needs to be done. But we don’t have the time to do it.

We say this needs to stop.

Why are you reading this? Get a life already!

At the end of the day, all we have is what we’ve got. We can’t change it, so we might as well accept it. If problems did exist, we should try to solve them.

There are no descendents in this headline.

While we appreciate the University’s efforts to take care of the campus, they fall short in one category: smell.

While we appreciate the University’s efforts to take care of the campus, they fall short in one category: smell.

There’s a weird odor coming out of the science labs. I don’t know what it is, but it’s bad. Same with the gym, the library, and the lecture halls. It’s just...ick. Yes, there’s a lot that needs to be done. But we don’t have the time to do it.

We say this needs to stop.

Why are you reading this? Get a life already!

At the end of the day, all we have is what we’ve got. We can’t change it, so we might as well accept it. If problems did exist, we should try to solve them.

There are no descendents in this headline.

While we appreciate the University’s efforts to take care of the campus, they fall short in one category: smell.

While we appreciate the University’s efforts to take care of the campus, they fall short in one category: smell.

There’s a weird odor coming out of the science labs. I don’t know what it is, but it’s bad. Same with the gym, the library, and the lecture halls. It’s just...ick. Yes, there’s a lot that needs to be done. But we don’t have the time to do it.

We say this needs to stop.

Why are you reading this? Get a life already!

At the end of the day, all we have is what we’ve got. We can’t change it, so we might as well accept it. If problems did exist, we should try to solve them.

There are no descendents in this headline.

While we appreciate the University’s efforts to take care of the campus, they fall short in one category: smell.

While we appreciate the University’s efforts to take care of the campus, they fall short in one category: smell.

There’s a weird odor coming out of the science labs. I don’t know what it is, but it’s bad. Same with the gym, the library, and the lecture halls. It’s just...ick. Yes, there’s a lot that needs to be done. But we don’t have the time to do it.

We say this needs to stop.
Rabid emus, tube top cause disturbance at AU

BY CINDERELLA PRINCESS FAIRY TALE PRINCESS

If you leave your room today, be careful. Rabid emus have been spotted on campus. According to one University expert, the emus should be considered very dangerous. “Emus are normally quite friendly,” said Joe Jasporwitzkerczyk, president of AU’s newest organization, Educating Mankind about Emus. “But when they contract rabies, they get nasty. Students should be advised not to approach any suspicious looking birds on campus,” Jasporwitzkerczyk said.

Jasporwitzkerczyk said he believed the emus, who escaped from a traveling circus were infected by a raccoon or maybe a fox. For some students, it is too late for warnings. “I saw this really neat looking bird, and I just wanted to pet it,” said Tippy Giggles, a freshman. “Then it bit me, and I cried. I had to go to the hospital and get shots. But they gave me a rabies bandage, and it made me feel all better,” Giggles said.

Giggles explained that several of her friends were also sent to the hospital after receiving emus bites. “I don’t think they got the rabies bandage, though,” Giggles said.

A campus security officer took Giggles to the hospital said, “I didn’t think the emu attack was entirely the emuns fault. ‘Have you seen that girl?’ the security officer asked. ‘She was wearing a tube top. There is no good reason to wear a tube top! If I were an emu, I would have bitten her for sure!'”

The security officer said she was unsure whether Giggles’ friends were also wearing tube tops.

“But I bet they deserved to be bitten,” she said. “Wait, is this on the record?”

Some students are unsure of the threat rabid emus pose to the campus community. “What’s an emu? Is that like an ostrich?” asked one student, who asked not to be identified.

Unfortunately, people often confuse emus and ostriches, said Jasporwitzkerczyk. “They’re completely different animals. That’s why we founded EMUS. We wanted people to learn the emuns truth.”

“Just want everyone to know that I have nothing against emuns in general,” said Giggles. “This was just a freak thing. I still like emus. Oh, and everyone should vote for me for prom queen.”

When Giggles was reminded that this is college and there is no prom, she simply moaned. “We’ll see about her,” she said.

She was unable to finish her sentence, as she was immediately struck in the head by an airborne rock. Suspects are being questioned about the attack. The director of campus security said they would appreciate any information about the person or persons assisting an emus suit.

BY PRINCESS JUDES

With the increase of students attending Alfred University from the New York City metropolitan area, talks of extending the D-train path into Alfred have been confirmed. After a year of debate and research, city officials, AU administration and the Metropolitan Transportation Authority agreed to build a subway system along Route 17. The funding would come from various sources.

Although it was AU administration that proposed the project, other schools along the way pitched in. “It’s only natural for them to hitch onto the D-train,” said Jasporwitzkerczyk. “They’re com-pletely different animals. That’s why we founded EMUS. We wanted people to learn the emuns truth.”

One such school is SUNY Binghamton. “A lot of city students have to ride up to Binghamton,” said Jasporwitzkerczyk. “It’s only natural for them to hitch onto the D-train.”

Another school along Route 17 is Ithaca College and Vassar College. Other schools are also interested in participating in the new D-train project. Ethaca College and Vassar College have expressed interest in extensions to the train to take them off from the main line and into their communities.

Proposals have been made to raise the D-train the local partner of the express D-train. For now, the D-train is the only project passed and ready to go.

Students are very enthusiastic about the proposal. “What’s a subway?” asked a freshman. “What’s a freshman?” asked a sophomore. Because this ride to Alfred or Binghamton is longer than the usual subway commute, MTA will have to charge a higher fare. Riders will now cost $10.

AU’s next step is to try to get a picture of the Steinheim museum on the back of future Metrocars.

“Everyone should vote for me for prom queen.”

—Tippy Giggles

D-train coming to AU

BY CINDERELLA PRINCESS FAIRY TALE PRINCESS

Honey, Please do not bite my ankle. It is not fun and not cool.

Love, your lady

Mention this ad and get a free drink and $5 worth of gaming money!
Fly Fishing

Honkidory took second place Horseshoe Conglomeration's in a row at the Rochester Area ability left (huh?!) got six ringers the last Wednesday's Onondaga team. His efforts helped AU Elise Honkidory were names Alfred State-Wellsville next was wearing underwear under that senior Seamus Campbell Caber Toss should be a threat again at Cox also had good rounds. Eyes from 30m to help clinch the Bettie Sue Smith had four bull's Womencricket should be a threat again at Saxons having 9 points apiece. Smiths had a huge win for Saxons street hockey Saxonsportsroundup Beginner forward Nathanial Mattenscheiwrler blasted a shot past Bucks County Community College (Pa.) goalie N.Y. Good with 12 seconds to play as the Saxons edged BCCC 54-52 in front of a ravenous McLane Center crowd. Mattenscheiwrler finished with 13 shots, 5 TDs to lead the Saxons. He got plenty of help, with three other Saxons having 9 points apiece. Saxons goalie Michael (Whiskers) Finesegan made 14 saves, but saw his goals-per-game avg. go up sharply. Saxson defender Siemo Po had five stops. The Saxons are now 14-3 on the season with arch-rival Winston University coming to town Saturday. Women's Archery Bettie Sue Smith had four bull's eyes from 30m to help clinch the regional championship for AU at last week's Hornell Classic. Roberta Dickson and Sylvia Cox also had good rounds. The Dickson-Cox combo should be a threat again at regionals. Caber Toss AU was disqualified at the AU invitationals when it was found that senior Seamus Campbell was wearing underwear under his kilt. The team travels to play Alfred State-Wellsville next week. Athletics of the Week Terrence Dippenshook and Elise Honkindory were names Athletes of the Week. Dippenshook has been a force for the Saxons marble team. His efforts helped AU defeat Cornell and Syracuse at the last Wednesday's Onondaga County大理石经典. Honkindory, a super-super-senior with two years of eligibility left (huh?!) got six ringers in a row at the Rochester Area Horseless Conglomeration's Toss Championships. Honkindory took second place honors for her throws. The Saxson boxing team did well at last week's inflatable tournament held at St. Bonaventure. Here, an AU boxer puts a member of the University of Rochester team on the ropes. The AU boxer would score a technical knockout later in the round. Saxson sports roundup Men's speedball Junior forward Nathanial Mattenscheiwrler blasted a shot past Bucks County Community College (Pa.) goalie N.Y. Good with 12 seconds to play as the Saxons edged BCCC 54-52 in front of a ravenous McLane Center crowd. Mattenscheiwrler finished with 13 shots, 5 TDs to lead the Saxons. He got plenty of help, with three other Saxons having 9 points apiece. Saxons goalie Michael (Whiskers) Finesegan made 14 saves, but saw his goals-per-game avg. go up sharply. Saxson defender Siemo Po had five stops. The Saxons are now 14-3 on the season with arch-rival Winston University coming to town Saturday. Women's Archery Bettie Sue Smith had four bull's eyes from 30m to help clinch the regional championship for AU at last week's Hornell Classic. Roberta Dickson and Sylvia Cox also had good rounds. The Dickson-Cox combo should be a threat again at regionals. Caber Toss AU was disqualified at the AU invitationals when it was found that senior Seamus Campbell was wearing underwear under his kilt. The team travels to play Alfred State-Wellsville next week. Athletics of the Week Terrence Dippenshook and Elise Honkindory were names Athletes of the Week. Dippenshook has been a force for the Saxons marble team. His efforts helped AU defeat Cornell and Syracuse at the last Wednesday's Onondaga County大理石经典. Honkindory, a super-super-senior with two years of eligibility left (huh?!) got six ringers in a row at the Rochester Area Horseless Conglomeration's Toss Championships. Honkindory took second place honors for her throws. Stadium upgrade plans hit snag: enough fans? BY OLIVY OXENFREE Childhood saying Duh. But Williams maintained his optimism about the project. “This can still happen,” he said, “We just have to determine if fans in Buffalo and Rochester would come down to watch teams like Penn State and Ohio State come in town.” AU, of course, has been admitted to the Big Ten, which has long been looking to add a 12th team. Another possibility Williams is looking into would be the relocation of the Buffalo Bills to the Southern Tier. “Sure, they just renovated [Ralph Wilson Stadium],” Williams said, “but we can offer them a state-of-the-art athletic facility down here.” The NFL and the Buffalo Bills said that this was in no way, ever, ever going to happen. The stadium issue must be decided soon as the NCAA requires D-1 teams to meet a standard for stadium seating capacity. “This is going to go through,” Williams said, “one way or another.” Saxson sports roundup Men's speedball Junior forward Nathanial Mattenscheiwrler blasted a shot past Bucks County Community College (Pa.) goalie N.Y. Good with 12 seconds to play as the Saxons edged BCCC 54-52 in front of a ravenous McLane Center crowd. Mattenscheiwrler finished with 13 shots, 5 TDs to lead the Saxons. He got plenty of help, with three other Saxons having 9 points apiece. Saxons goalie Michael (Whiskers) Finesegan made 14 saves, but saw his goals-per-game avg. go up sharply. Saxson defender Siemo Po had five stops. The Saxons are now 14-3 on the season with arch-rival Winston University coming to town Saturday. Women's Archery Bettie Sue Smith had four bull's eyes from 30m to help clinch the regional championship for AU at last week's Hornell Classic. Roberta Dickson and Sylvia Cox also had good rounds. The Dickson-Cox combo should be a threat again at regionals. Caber Toss AU was disqualified at the AU invitationals when it was found that senior Seamus Campbell was wearing underwear under his kilt. The team travels to play Alfred State-Wellsville next week. Athletics of the Week Terrence Dippenshook and Elise Honkindory were names Athletes of the Week. Dippenshook has been a force for the Saxons marble team. His efforts helped AU defeat Cornell and Syracuse at the last Wednesday's Onondaga County大理石经典. Honkindory, a super-super-senior with two years of eligibility left (huh?!) got six ringers in a row at the Rochester Area Horseless Conglomeration's Toss Championships. Honkindory took second place honors for her throws. The Saxson boxing team did well at last week's inflatable tournament held at St. Bonaventure. Here, an AU boxer puts a member of the University of Rochester team on the ropes. The AU boxer would score a technical knockout later in the round. huge win for saxon street hockey by henry bolingbroke king of england The crowd that lined the McLane Parking Lot Arena was one of the loudest this school has seen in a while. “Sandwich,” said Walunts, referring to Enjay's nickname, “just put up the perfect pass into the slot. He made the play. I only finished it.” “This outcome wouldn't have been possible without the efforts of junior winger Elilie Brittenesse who managed to score two goals in a 30-second spam midway through the last frame to tie the score at four. Saint-Denis also praised the crew for their cheering. “We came in and threw four goals up and we couldn't hold it,” Fur said. “This is not the way you should be playing if you want to stay near the top of the Western New York 12 Conferences.” “We really needed this win to get us back in the race,” Fur said. “We really think we showed we can play with anybody.” said Saxson head coach Jean-Pierre Saint-Denis, the former Quebec star whom AU brought in to solidify the program at AU. For the Saxons, they are now a mere four points away from leading the far West Division and ten from the outright conference lead. “This game showed how tough we really are. We really proved ourselves tonight, and I think we showed we can play with anybody,” said Saxson head coach Jean-Pierre Saint-Denis, the former Quebec star whom AU brought in to solidify the program at AU. The Saxons promptly got a short-handed goal from Jamie Shinkenesh. That set up the third period heroics. “We really needed this win before going on our big road trip,” Enjay said. The Saxons now have a five-game road swing. With any luck, they may return two weeks from now with first place in their possess-ion.!! Stadium upgrade plans hit snag: enough fans? BY OLIVY OXENFREE Childhood saying Dah. But Williams maintained his optimism about the project. “This can still happen,” he said, “We just have to determine if fans in Buffalo and Rochester would come down to watch teams like Penn State and Ohio State come in town.” AU, of course, has been admitted to the Big Ten, which has long been looking to add a 12th team. Another possibility Williams is looking into would be the relocation of the Buffalo Bills to the Southern Tier. “Sure, they just renovated [Ralph Wilson Stadium],” Williams said, “but we can offer them a state-of-the-art athletic facility down here.” The NFL and the Buffalo Bills said that this was in no way, ever, ever going to happen. The stadium issue must be decided soon as the NCAA requires D-1 teams to meet a standard for stadium seating capacity. “This is going to go through,” Williams said, “one way or another.” The Saxson boxing team did well at last week's inflatable tournament held at St. Bonaventure. Here, an AU boxer puts a member of the University of Rochester team on the ropes. The AU boxer would score a technical knockout later in the round.